

Enhancing Incident Response With The watchTower Platform

In the world of Incident Response (IR), and as cyberattacks grow in sophistication, identifying the initial entry point into an organization during a breach has become more critical than ever.

However, performing Incident Response activities before identifying and closing all entry points leaves organizations vulnerable to repeated breaches. By addressing only the immediate symptoms of an attack, organizations risk missing hidden entry points and exploitable vulnerabilities, effectively leaving the door open for attackers to strike again.

Deploying the watchTower Platform as the first step after a breach ensures no entry points or vulnerabilities remain undetected, enabling a comprehensive and secure remediation process. This proactive approach not only helps organizations recover from current breaches but also fortifies their defenses against future attacks.

Enhance and evolve IR with the watchTower Platform

- Identify Additional And Hidden Entry Points
The watchTower Platform can rapidly identify additional and exploitable entry points for a potential cyber attack, ensuring that remediation efforts address root causes and prevent attackers from regaining access.
- Identify Exploitable Vulnerabilities To Reduce Real Risk
Recognizing that not all vulnerabilities are equal, the watchTower Platform focuses on exploitable vulnerabilities that once remediated represent real cybersecurity risk reduction and accelerating response times.
- Support Comprehensive Remediation
By providing actionable insights and additional entry points, the watchTower Platform enables effective incident response and reduces the likelihood of repeat incidents.
